Problem Description

Effective personal finance management is a challenge faced by many individuals today, especially during these fast times in which we live right now. Keeping track of income, expenses, and maintaining a balanced budget is essential for financial stability.

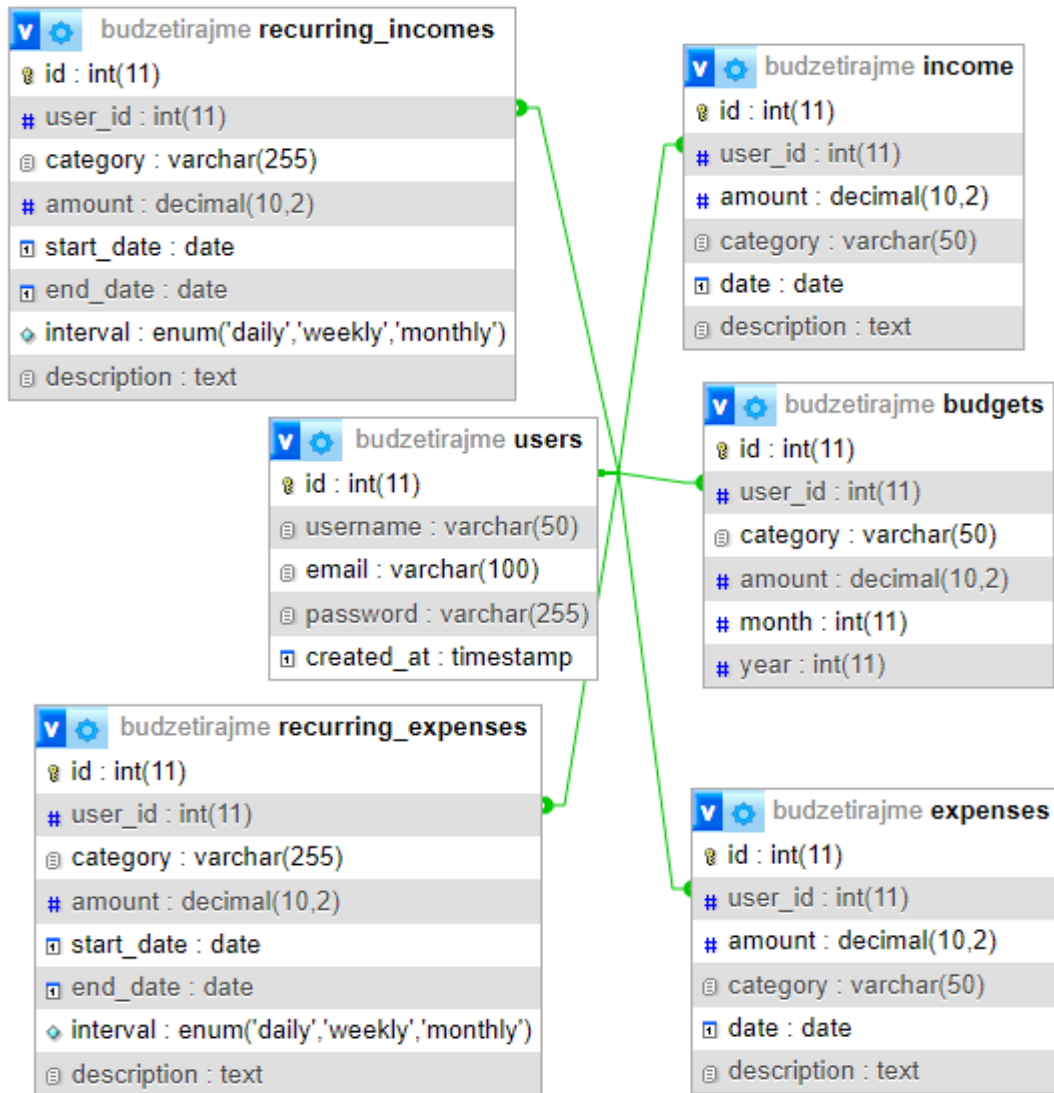

The primary users of this application are individuals seeking a straightforward tool to manage their personal finances. This includes students, professionals, and families who need to track their financial activities and stay within their budget. The lack of accessible and user-friendly financial management tools often leads to financial mismanagement and stress.

Solution Description

Budzetiraj.me addresses these problems by providing an intuitive platform for managing personal finances. The application allows users to track their income and expenses efficiently, categorize transactions, and manage budgets for different spending categories. Users can also set up recurring transactions to automate regular income and expenses, saving time and ensuring accuracy.

The application features detailed reporting tools that provide insights into spending patterns and budget adherence. Users can generate monthly and comparative reports to analyze their financial data over time. The dashboard offers a quick overview of the current month's income, expenses, and net balance, helping users make informed financial decisions. The minimalist design ensures ease of use, making it accessible to users of all technical knowledge.

Database Schema
